Original Articles

- 1475 Patterns of Health Care Usage in the Year Before Suicide: A Population-Based Case-Control Study
Megan M. Chock, Tanner J. Bommersbach, Jennifer L. Geske, and J. Michael Bostwick
Death by suicide is more likely in patients who present to the emergency department for a mental health issue.
- 1482 Troponin T as a Predictor of End-Stage Renal Disease and All-Cause Death in African Americans and Whites From Hypertensive Families
LaTonya J. Hickson, Andrew D. Rule, Kenneth R. Butler Jr, Gary L. Schwartz, Allan S. Jaffe, Adam C. Bartley, Thomas H. Mosley Jr, and Stephen T. Turner
This may be the first study to demonstrate the ability of cardiac troponin T to predict end-stage renal disease beyond traditional risk markers and kidney function.
- 1492 Use of Echocardiography in Olmsted County Outpatients With Chest Pain and Normal Resting Electrocardiograms Seen at Mayo Clinic Rochester
Raymond J. Gibbons, Damita Carryer, Hongfang Liu, Peter A. Brady, J. Wells Askew, David Hodge, Naser Ammash, Jon O. Ebbert, and Veronique L. Roger Unnecessary echocardiograms could be avoided by eliminating preordering and waiting until the clinician is aware of electrocardiogram results.

Dharmendrakumar A. Patel, Carl J. Lavie, Yvonne E. Gilliland, Sangeeta B. Shah, Homeyar K. Dinshaw, and Richard V. Milani

Left atrial enlargement was independently associated with an increased risk of all-cause mortality in this large sample of patients who likely reflect those commonly encountered in busy clinical cardiovascular practices.

1506 Separate Effects of Intensity and Amount of Exercise on Interindividual Cardiorespiratory Fitness Response

Robert Ross, Louise de Lannoy, and Paula J. Stotz

For many sedentary obese adults, low-intensity exercise may not improve cardiorespiratory fitness. However, increasing either intensity or amount of exercise can help.

1515 Reference Standards for Cardiorespiratory Fitness Measured With Cardiopulmonary Exercise Testing: Data From the Fitness Registry and the Importance of Exercise National Database

Leonard A. Kaminsky, Ross Arena, and Jonathan Myers

Given the importance of cardiorespiratory fitness in estimating health risk, it is essential to have accurate cardiorespiratory fitness reference values to know what constitutes “normal.”

1524 Standing, Obesity, and Metabolic Syndrome: Findings From the Cooper Center Longitudinal Study

Kerem Shuval, Carolyn E. Barlow, Carrie E. Finley, Kelley Pettee Gabriel, Michael D. Schmidt, and Laura F. DeFina

Standing a quarter of the time per day or more is associated with reduced odds of obesity.

Special Article1533 Less Sitting, More Physical Activity, or Higher Fitness?
